These codes will be distributed via a software update after running a small download.

White matter changes associated with severe traumatic brain injury: a DWI and T2*-weighted MRI study. To characterize the structural and vascular changes in white matter in relation to severity of traumatic brain injury (TBI) by using diffusion-weighted imaging (DWI) and T2*-weighted MRI. In this retrospective study, we enrolled 32 patients with severe TBI and 30 healthy controls. Each subject underwent T2*-weighted MRI and DWI. The indices for measuring the severity of TBI were Glasgow Coma Scale and clinical outcomes. Age, sex, and modified Fisher's scale value were similar between two groups. Although the proportion of patients with mild TBI in the DWI-positive group was lower than in the DWI-negative group (29% vs. 65%), the rates of non-focal/focal DWI lesions were not significantly different between the two groups (66% vs. 59%). Patients with and without DWI lesions had worse clinical outcomes than did healthy controls (P 0.05). The mean apparent diffusion coefficient (ADC) was significantly lower in patients with diffuse lesions than in those with focal lesions. The ADC was correlated with age and the mRS value. Regression analysis revealed that the ADC was dependent on the ages of the patients and the mRS value. Patients with TBI have diffuse axonal injuries, and the mean ADC value is correlated with age and the mRS value.

Abstract Controlling ammonia emissions from livestock systems is a cornerstone in the European Commission's Strategy to reduce nitrogen (N) levels in agriculture and the environment. The use of nitrification inhibitors (NI) is a promising technology to reduce
