Q: Set CanVisible and AutoGenerate I want to show a control in a specific group header when a listview row is selected. I can get the group header by using GetGroup, but how can I get the control in the group header? To make things clear, I'll provide an example. Let's say I have 5 groups with different controls. And those controls are generated depending on whether certain conditions are met.

A1 A2 A3 A4 A5 B1 B2 B3 B4 B5 C1 C2 C3 C4 C5
A1 C1 A2 B2 A3 C3 A4 B4 A5 C5 B1 C1 B2 C2 B3 C3 B4 C4 B5 C5 C1 C1 C2 C2 C3 C3 C4 C4 C5 C5

How can I set the CanVisible property of a custom control in a group header when a row in a listview is selected? Or how to handle this situation with default controls like a combobox or label or textbox?

A: You need to use an EventTrigger and a custom object to determine what to do. You can create your own DependencyProperty for that case. public static readonly DependencyProperty ShowControlProperty = DependencyProperty.

Register("ShowControl", typeof(object), typeof(MyGroupHeader), new PropertyMetadata(ShowControlChanged));
public object ShowControl { get { return

What's new:

. "What? You mean you cheated on me?" Shay's voice rose in volume with each word. Maxium's smile dissipated and his voice dropped in volume. "I wouldn't cheat on you." "You said you weren't going to be seeing anyone." Maxium looked down at his lap. "I haven't been in the past five or six years." She glared at him. "I've been married five or six times." Maxium laid his head back on the neck rest of the chair and closed his eyes. "A guy just doesn't change that much." She ignored his comment, leaning toward him. "Five or six times?" Maxium's eyes shot open as he looked at her. "Someone's getting gun-shy." She ignored his comment. "But if I were to tell you that my ex-wife and I cheated on one another and it nearly broke our relationship," Maxium paused and looked down at his lap again. "I expect you to come clean." She stared hard at him and shook her head. "I don't know what you're trying to tell me, but I don't need some man telling me what to do." "But it'll make you happy." "It won't change my life. I'm not telling you what to do. I'm just telling you that when I said no more people I meant no more men, and that there's no chance that I'm going to cheat on you." Maxium sneered. "So what, you want to be some virgin, Kate. You've cheated on everyone else but me." "No I haven't," Kate retorted. "That's right, you didn't. You cheated on me. That's what's so ironic with all of this coming up. I've cheated on several women and you're not saying a word about it." "What's ironic is you talk about how not to cheat on a person, yet you're doing exactly that." "I've only cheated on one woman." "No one deserves to be cheated on." "You." He pointed to her. "You're the one that deserves to be cheated on. I've had your back all these years only to have a heartless woman take you away from me." "Never!" She roared. "I could never
