For example, you can use `/var/lib/kube-receiver` as a directory to store the uploaded files.
* You must have the appropriate privileges to store the files in the directory. .Procedure .
Download the link:{eks-component-download-link}/receiver-demo[`eksctl receiver-demo`] command. . Run the command and upload the link:{install-node-default-context-from-an-image}[`node-default-context`] image to a namespace. The default destination folder on the `eksctl receiver-demo` command is `/usr/bin/kube-receiver`. . Review the log output of the command to ensure that the upload worked. You can find this log output in the link:{install-node-default-context-from-an-image}[`ansible-kube`] file in the root of the default `eksctl receiver-demo` directory. To receive a zip file via the link:{install-node-default-context-from-an-image}[`ansible-kube`] file, you must define a receiver that receives files being delivered to that directory. [NOTE] ===== You must be aware of the limitations of the `receiver` if you are using a non-default `eksctl receiver-demo` directory.
