I'm looking for a person to help me with my bag. I need a good heavy bag to practice Muay Thai. I want something to hang from hooks. I'd like to set up a training schedule. For practice I want to do at least 2-4 workouts per week, and sometimes five. First time bag owner. My first suggestion is for an electronic timer. A timer is not needed, but it is nice to keep track of your workouts. Many Gyms/Hospitals/Physical Therapy use electronic timers in rehabilitation/physical therapy. I suggest weighing the bag before and after workouts, so that you get an idea of the loss or gain per workout. I take two workouts per day usually, or at least that's what I used to do. Most Gyms/Hospitals/Physical Therapy have weight training and cardio equipment, so you could workout while you're at the Gym/Hospitals. For a contact with the Coach, you need a Digital Voice Recorder. The Voice Recorder will allow you to playback the workout and exercise with customized features. You will need a DVR, in order to replay your workouts. You will have to program which workouts you want to be able to play over and over again. You should have the ability to record the workout on a MUGEN client. How old is your bag? It's probably a few years old. Do you hang your bag from a ring or pole? You don't have to have a ring or a pole, but it will make workouts easier. A ring is a good choice, but at some point you might want to hang your bag from a pole. Are you using the punching bag, or just hanging it from hooks? An adjustable bar will allow you to change the position of your hands when punching. How does your bag fit into the Gym? You can have a pole, but most Gyms have that option. If you have a pole, you can have an arm, forearm, and hand strap, to allow you to hang your bag. If you have a pole, you can hang a bag from it or hang a bag off a crossbar between the pole and the ceiling. What is your height? What kind of exercises do you usually do? Are you looking to stay light, or build some muscle? d0c515b9f4
