Schirmer. .At least 15 people have died and around 115 were injured in a bus crash in the southern Egyptian province of Minya, local officials and eyewitnesses said on Monday. They said the passengers were not only Egyptians but also among other nationalities, including Sudanese and Syrians. Tahmas El-Qorbaty, an Egyptian official who coordinated the rescue operations, told state-run EGYnews website that "most of the dead are bodies." Qorbaty said about 40 bodies have been transferred to the Cairo hospital. "Some of the wounded were transferred to other hospitals in Cairo." The governor of Minya, who takes turns running the southern province, said that the bus was overloaded and that many of those on board were not wearing seat belts. He said that the crash happened between Port Said and Minya at 4:00 a.m. (1700 GMT). The governor said the bus was traveling from Port Said to Minya when it crashed. Since January 25, a security crackdown in Egypt has killed more than 130 people in ongoing protests against President Abdel Fattah al-Sisi. Critics accuse him of cracking down on dissent and many fear he is trying to cling to power after his re-election last year. Following an earlier protest against the re-election of Sisi in July, in which at least 50 people were killed, Egypt's top court dissolved the lower house of parliament and froze the assets of the main Muslim Brotherhood group. More than 1,400 people were killed in 2013, mostly during confrontations between the security forces and supporters of the Brotherhood, which Egypt outlawed in the aftermath of the 2011 uprising.Traveling (Swedish band) Traveling (officially known as Traveling – The Biennial Version of the Best of 1998-2007) was a Swedish rock group. It started as an acoustic folk trio, but later diversified into a 1cdb36666d
