Researcher: My NSA-Backdoor-Vulnerable GPS Device Didn't Support PINs - mbostock ===== trotsky It's interesting how weak yet specific these vulnerabilities are. The question is what else in your digital life can be targeted if you care to drill down the road? A more interesting question might be how widespread are these things. "Doubts about the existence of the alleged vulnerabilities led some lawmakers to question whether they should be taken seriously. Sen. Chuck Schumer (D- NY) told the Post, "It seems like the United States government is making some very secret laws that no one knows about." Namaste's Double Compound Breaks Through the Vinyl World Written by: TheHalo Published in: Vinyl Record Collecting Namaste's Double Compound Record had to break a few rules to get the job done, but the hero of this song is none other than Tots Finest, the man with the pick and hammer, and our faithful friend Stinger. He had to spend a few nights piling dirt on the record to fill the groove and punch through the surface of the vinyl. He even had to disable the tonearm so the record wouldn't skip when he played it. Tots Finest first used a car jack with heavy duty metal to raise the record high enough. He then used a large hoe to embed the record in the soil so that when it eventually dug itself back out, it would spin on a new axis. After this long and dramatic design, he finished it all off with fine tuning. We don't know about you, but we love when Tots Finest gets in on the action.The world we live in is completely different than the world we used to live in. There are still extreme acts of violence that take place all over the world, but you don't see quite the same amount of murders occurring at the same time as they used to. We're going to break down ten of the most important crimes in the world that are occurring right now. 10. The Gambia The Gambia is a country in West Africa that has seen a rise in citizens going to prison on a drug trafficking charge. While many reasons were cited in the media, including the high cost of flights into the area, the main reason for the increase in prison numbers is because of methamphetamine. The area saw a massive influx of dealers coming from Kenya and Somalia, looking to capitalize on the demand for the drug. The dealers had to be stopped, and a huge crackdown on drug trafficking ensued. Alvin Sawyerr is the Head of Public Safety at the National Drug Enforcement Agency. He said that "the Gambia once had very good relationships with KENYA, and that those relationships have been damaged and that has resulted in the increase of drug smuggling in the country."
