Stakes are high! (2e) Updated October 2011 In 1931, military strategy magazine Tiger Fighter published a classic article by the legendary Lt. Gen. Billy Mitchell. In his article, "The Rules of War in the Modern Army", Mitchell called for a new approach to military strategy: he proposed a set of rules that all commanders of armies should follow. Those rules are as follows: 1: Information 2: Seizing the initiative 3: Gaining maximum combat power before the enemy can react 4: Pursuing an enemy relentlessly 5: Stopping the enemy from succeeding 6: Maintaining a relentless pressure on the enemy 7: Getting the enemy to weaken and make his will subservient to yours 8: Taking care of your own wounded while theirs are still alive 9: Improving your own abilities and those of your support group 10: Attacks that are based on deception 11: Surprise attacks 12: Combat based on speed Mitchell's "Rules of Warfare" were highly controversial in their time. His ideas would not be accepted until the 1950s. Today, Mitchell is one of the few living military strategists. He is only one of the many brilliant pioneers who have come before him. The Rules of War has never been more relevant. Gentlemen, welcome back to the cockpit! We're not sure why this one was your first, but I can tell you we're glad you're back. You've logged almost a hundred hours since you last flew against a real enemy, haven't you? We're not sure if you've heard about the new regatta, but it's come along quite nicely. It was designed by our Head of Game Design, Mr. Janos Blank, but he didn't have time to develop the game himself, so we took the opportunity to try our hand at it. What do you think? When you're done with this one, why don't you have a word with your pilot? We need to set up the next one so that it's ready for you when you return. I know it's not the same, but this one is free. What's new:

is a Japanese manga series written and illustrated by Tsuneo Gotō. It is about a young hunter called Tegami who is researching in the Hyūga region of Mie Prefecture, Japan. He stumbles on a shrine, the home of a tiger who was summoned into a fight with great difficulty. He learns from those who died during the battle that a boy called Yaguma Yukinosuke, (aka Sky Master), and his friend Yamadori Tomomasa make up the tiger's guardians. These two, along with Tegami, encounter a mysterious tiger who kills a hunter. Toramaru, as the story is written, is the "son" of the tiger Yaguma Yukinosuke; a point that was less important in the mangas' earlier chapters. Toramaru is a fighter who stands at 6'5" and has three different tiger masks to fight with. He is also the second hunter that meets Yukinosuke, and the climax of the story centers on a fight between Toramaru and Yaguma. Inspiration, characters, and fictional elements of Toramaru first came to Gotō with a dream where a golden orange tiger appeared right next to his bed. It was the start of a long relationship, that involves research and characters from both past and present. The storybook is referenced throughout the series, but its main focus is not the Toramaru section; instead, the story takes place in a world where tigers and humans have merged together. They live together, work together, and even duel together. The main character, Toramaru, notes that all of the characters are of "the same species" and that this is "the only world in the natural order". Toramaru was announced to have ended on August 26, 2015, after running for 8 years, and became available for download on the MangaOne app on August 29. The manga's chapters were later put into a single tankōbon volume, serialized by Kodansha, and released on February 20, 2014. In 2016, it was announced that another manga series called Toramaru! franchise will start in 2017. Toramaru was awarded Best Manga Award for Young Readers' Picture Book at the 18th Japan Media Arts Festival in Tokyo, Japan. Plot Tegami, a young hunter, is browsing the forest in the Hyūga region of Mie Prefecture, Japan. After finding a shrine, he observes a tiger near the village. He encounters two weird-looking
