Gameplay During a training session, the engine can capture over 70 player movements per second. The player models are based on the 2013 kit used in FIFA 13. Physically, they look very similar to the 2013 FIFA players, although the players seem to sit a little higher. The game seems to be running at a lower frame rate, as the ball drifts towards you and feels more sluggish. I'm told this is the intended experience. The engine has improved in many ways, and is the most polished engine in the franchise for a long time, with far better reaction, fluidity and speed than any previous game, particularly on 1080p. On-field pace and acceleration are also improved, and hitting a player or goalkeeper is now much more satisfying and realistic. Interceptions and shots going through the keeper's hands are also much more realistic. You can even plant your feet and have a mid-air collision with a player to send him flying. As detailed in the initial preview, FIFA '22 will feature a more fluid passing mechanic, the return of the Ultimate Team card progression system, and revamped player models. It's also much better at depicting run out situations than any previous game. The Champions League is finally included in this year's release, with Arsenal as England's Champions League representative. Features The five official kits are in, but the Unisex kit is missing. There is a much larger range of player sizes than previous games, with many more players in the real-life height/weight ratio range. Retirements, through injury, injury to a player's playing status, or visa issues are now part of the transfer process, giving the buying club more of a say. The "Introduce Player" feature is now called "Press the Name Button", and enables you to swiftly and easily complete the first touch and set-piece abilities by allowing you to pick a player from the pre-created pool of players. A brand new "Take a Pass" mechanic allows you to use the touchline to pick out a running player and have them find you. The player will now have to take a touch first. A number of different situations are available, but as I haven't played the game yet, I can't comment on the details. There are new animations and timing for the Goalkeeper and Strikers. The GKs now dive and are quicker in getting up from the ground. They also react better to interceptions. The Zhirinovskyy: Halt at 'Donbass border' June 17, 2014, 15:51 UTC+3 Russian President Vladimir Putin named a special representative on the peace settlement in eastern Ukraine, saying that the new person would work "to normalize the situation on the border with the self-proclaimed Donetsk and Lugansk republics," TASS news agency reports. MOSCOW, June 17. /TASS/. The Kremlin supports Ukraine's territorial integrity. The only point the conflict requires taking into account, is peaceful coexistence of nations and national cultures, Russian President Vladimir Putin said at a meeting with Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov on Monday. Putin also said that Russian authorities called the self-proclaimed Donetsk and Lugansk people's republics (DPR and LPR) in eastern Ukraine on the phone. "Such a dialogue also occurs on a telephone, let everyone hear me... Russia supports the territorial integrity of Ukraine. The only thing that needs to be taken into account in the crisis is peaceful coexistence of nations and national cultures. It is necessary that the Ukrainian side understands that," Putin said. "We are for a united Ukraine. However, that does not mean its separation into several fragments. Perhaps such will be a sequence of many solutions on all the other related issues, starting with the border of the newly-created country," the President said.
