Q: Read content from a non-ASCII URL using powershell I'm using powershell and I have the URL from a web service. When I try to read it, it doesn't give me a list of items in this url. It just give me some characters. I am converting it to a URI and passing the result to Invoke-RestMethod. I have to keep this in powershell. $url = "" $webServiceURL = [Uri]$url $webServiceURL.Host Doesn't give me the expected result. For example: PS D:\> $url = "" PS D:\> $webServiceURL = [Uri]$url PS D:\> $webServiceURL.Host That's all. So, how can I get the value of code and volume. I want to store those values in variables as $code and $volume The code I use is: Invoke-RestMethod -Uri $webServiceURL -Headers $Header -Method Get -OutFile $logFile -UseDefaultCredentials The result I get is: A: ( I am going to forget the part that it has to be encoded, I will just assume the URL-encoded values here ) $result = Invoke-WebRequest -Uri $webServiceURL -Headers $Header -Method Get -OutFile $logFile -UseDefaultCredentials $result.Content

Elden Ring Features Key:

CLASSES - v-Revision: Casual Class System. (Not included in the Early Access Beta) Detailed and easy to understand classes.

DIFFICULTY SCALE - (C)Achieves a higher level and dashes for non-casuals Mode with varying levels of difficulty. Gain experience and dash through the content of the game.

DUNGEON - DEEP ROOMS. (Not included in the Early Access Beta) Mainly a feature for non-casuals, yes...

MULTIPLAYER - WINGMAN MODE They said that multiplayer won't be implemented, but I'd like to know how.

I also like that you can enable/disable things during the game so you don't have to do it later.

OPPORTUNITY (Deeper Awakening) - Hex, Resurrection, Align, God

PVP BETA - The process of unlocking is different... The true PVP part is not yet implemented, so I'll keep it simple.

Kept eye contact.

Q: C++: accessing nested tuples by reference I understand that a nested tuple (e.g. [{1, 2, 3}]) is an object but not an array, and can't be copied/assigned as such. I also understand that one could also get and assign a reference of the nested tuple. My question is: Are nested tuples to be used in declaration of the parent class so that the instance variables can be reference-assigned like this? Is there a better way to go about assigning the data members of a class? Is a std::tuple nested tuple a valid nested tuple, with respect to the C++03 standard? A: 1) Are nested tuples to be used in declaration of the parent class so that the instance variables can be reference-assigned like this? No In general: no In spirit: Yes If a class derives from `std::tuple` and only overloads the manipulators `>` (`>` will not work) then it's legal. However, this should be used solely for demonstration purposes and not for "production ready code". 2) Is there a

And this trailer about the game: So with those bits of information, hopefully we have a better idea of what to expect when Tarnished releases. Is this the first Elden Lord you've met? All we know so far is that the world of Elden is on the verge of collapse, and just this week a huge chunk of the world was wiped out by a black hole. But like I said, we don't know much more. It's just a shame that this was leaked when it is, and not after the full launch. I'm looking forward to seeing all the new info that is coming after launch. With Elden we now have a long list of base classes we can choose from with the Archetype system, which is new for Tarnished. As far as actual gameplay goes, we don't have any more info about the combat system or multiplayer, except for the fact that there is a PvP system with league play. What is your favorite class archetype? We don't know much about the game, but we do know that the resource system is spent on items, skills and spells. That means that our gold currency is actual gold. Thankfully, most of that gold will be spent on items, so we have a lot of hope for the item system. So from here we have all the classes, but we have no idea about what any of them will be. I'm personally excited for the Paladin, because I always liked how he looked, and I love how he is in Tarnished. As far as archetypes go, I enjoy the Demon Hunter, as it gives us a new Demon based class, and as for the rest, I don't really have a favorite. I suppose I'm also excited for the new Exploration Archetype as it seems to me the most likely to allow for new and interesting content. There are a lot of classes available to try out, and the one that I think is going to be really fun is the Paladin. I don't really like Demon Hunters too much, but this new one is pretty neat and seems to have awesome abilities. My personal suggestion would be that you try all of the classes, and once you find one you like, stick with it. Do you have a favorite Archetype? Archetype is probably the most important part of the game, as it tells you what kind of world you're bff6bb2d33

- Battle the monsters outside, and fight in the Valor Offensive once at a time.
- In addition to Asynchronous Battle mode, we will add the following new features.
  - Asynchronous Multiplayer Mode. You can connect with other players on the same server and fight together.
  - Continuity content with the BOSS fight in Boss Quest mode. By clearing a certain number of subquests for the Boss, you can increase the boss' level. You can talk to your friend and learn about the next boss in an easy way, and your friend can also learn about the current boss, which makes it easy to share tips and information.
  - BOSS QUEST mode. Unlike the game mode called Leader Battle, we will add a new mode in which you become a BOSS by way of the rankings system. Many BOSSes will appear within the game and you will have to fight against them. Details will be announced at a later date. Create Your Own Character ... There are many kinds of fighters and magic users on the lands between the world, and you will be able to freely customize your appearance. There are also a variety of classes at your disposal, such as the fighter, the magic user, the healer, the warrior, and the pugilist. Equip and Develop a Variety of Weapons and Armor Play using the classes to which you are most suited. When you play as a fighter, you will be able to fight by just pressing the button. A variety of weapons will be made available. Their damage will increase with your level and their attack will be linked to your button. Equip a variety of armor with a variety of effects, such as increasing the effect of the damage dealt to the monsters around you. Develop Your Magic Ability Wield the forbidden magic with the guidance of your teacher. A variety of magic will be made available with their effects increasing with your level. You can receive assistance from your teacher. Use the Elden Ring to Fight the Monsters in the World Unlike in previous games, in the game of the Elden Ring, you do not need to defeat the monsters to progress. Monsters that appear outside will be members of a guild similar to a guild in the Lands Between. You can attack them, and as you fight them, they will be able to fight back. After that, you can repay back by becoming friends with them and defeating

Have We Entered a New Dark Age? The following article is the third in a multi-part series in which we examine the global environmental, social and political challenges facing our children and grandchildren. The ecological crisis A recent UN report predicts that six out of seven people will live in cities by mid-century as the planet's population exceeds nine billion. The UN suggests that fossil fuels, nuclear fission and hydrocarbons will last at least until 2100 and possibly beyond.

Several hundred countries will operate under entirely new social and economic systems. The rapid spread of intensive agriculture has led to the degradation of soils and the collapse of insect pollinators. Scientists have warned that global agriculture will need to triple its productivity by 2050 to feed 9.5 billion people. Nearly half of the world's land and about three-quarters of the world's fresh water are managed by a handful of industrialized countries. The vast majority of poor countries depend on "bio-diverse" ecosystems for production and protection of fresh water supplies. The UN report calls for global education to ensure that the next generation of decision-makers will be prepared to govern a more sustainable, democratic and equitable world. The dangers of nuclear proliferation The recently released report of the Nuclear Threat Initiative (NTI) lists 20 countries with nuclear weapons, 29 with the capacity to produce them and 16 with the know-how to produce them. The NTI lists North Korea as the worst performer, with a per capita income of just US $1,000, one-fifth the world's average. Other countries, like Iran, Pakistan, China and India, are aiming to develop nuclear weapons in the near future. By 2050, the world's population will reach nine billion. Rising incomes and urbanization will combine to create unprecedented demand for water and energy supplies - especially by developing countries. Governments currently lack incentives to ensure that the global water and energy systems have the appropriate level of resilience to meet global demand. The UN report on global partnerships issued in April 2015, called for "governments to take leadership in the search
