Launch the generator software. Start the newly created application by clicking the "Register" button. Select the desired version. Use the "Generate key" button to generate the key. Click on the "Download" button and the key will be installed. Click the "Done" button to close the software. You can now save the key to a *.pfx file and use it in the next step. Open the *pfx key file with WinZip, choose "Export", select "Public-key/RSA" and click "Save". Save the key to a *.txt file and copy it to your clipboard. Use the following command to import the key to the public subkeys of all existing registrations of Autodesk Autocad 16.0, 16.0.1 or 16.0.2. regsvr32 "C:\Program Files\Autodesk\AutoCAD\Acad.exe" /regserver /id:"" /dl: where "NIS GIN CERTIFICATE KEY" is the generated key stored in the .txt file. "A somewhat surprising move for a system's flagship product." - PCMag.com This has been a solid set of releases. This is the first release since the general availability of Windows 7 that has fixed this. It means that we have to start using SP1 again, unless you've already got SP1 already. Speaking of which, if you still have one of the early copies of SP1, you can upgrade to SP1 again. You'll have to reboot, though, as this does not upgrade you to the final SP1 version. This might be a nice way of getting your computer ready for the final release. The uninstall is pretty straightforward. Do a search for Microsoft.Uninstall. This should remove all traces of the old versions of MS Office from your computer. Umm, I'm not at my computer right now so I can't do an uninstall but I'll try to get to it later. Oh, and please do tell me the changes in the actual word products. (MS Office 2009 - 2010). Are you sure you don't mean Open XML SDK 2.0? You don't want to uninstall that do you? It's installed with the
