Autism spectrum disorder in boys: Are we seeing a gender difference? One issue that has received little attention in the study of autism spectrum disorder (ASD) is the apparent gap between prevalence rates in boys and girls. We briefly review the literature on ASD prevalence rates across various age groups and subtypes of ASD in boys and girls. We argue that the apparent gender difference in ASD prevalence may be a natural consequence of the lack of diagnostic sex-typing in ASD, combined with the male predominance of the general population. This is followed by a brief discussion of the methodological reasons behind the apparent gender difference. Tuesday, November 2, 2011 A Coming of Birth As I have previously mentioned, our oldest daughter will be turning one tomorrow! This will bring a new chapter in our lives and there are so many things to be thankful for. I am thankful to the Lord for all of these things: 1. The Lord has provided the best He has for us, and we were raised to have respect for this. 2. He desires that we pass along this belief to our children so that they may live a completely different life than we did. 3. We have been given two girls, which is perfect! 4. He has given me the best husband, and a job that I enjoy and that has given me the opportunity to work with others. 5. We have the best church we know of, where we are constantly led by the Lord to serve Him and to use our gifts in a way that will help others. I plan on writing more about this day as I think of things to be thankful for. I also hope to write again about my new found desire to bake. I have not been baking for a while, but I have been baking with my girls in the past few days. Today's recipe is a little something I think of as "coffee cake with a kick." I found the idea of this recipe and thought it sounded simple enough, and I didn't have all of the ingredients, so I went ahead and made it anyway. It turned out delicious! The girls loved it, and I think the boyfriend approved too! Prep Time: 10 minutes Cook Time: 20 minutes Total Time: 30 minutes 6d1f23a050
